It has life lessons, morals and values. It shows us that when you help someone, they will help you when you are in need. It has ordinary people. There is a farmer, a shepherd, a wise man, a student and a camel driver. It has luck and supernatural elements. The shepherd finds a chest full of gold, birds hear the student's cries and bring seeds from all over the world, a magical garden grows that has gates that stop rich people going in. 'The Magic Garden of the Poor' also has human problems like the disaster that strikes the shepherd and the poverty of the people. Students' own answer Suggested Answer Key          The Story of the Honest Woodcutter.	help Ss use new words in the sentences. Descriptor:          - read the text          - choose the correct answer. They could also debate whether the wise man was truly "wise" or just practical.	Once upon a time, there was a poor woodcutter who made money by cutting wood and selling it in the market. One day, he was in the forest cutting wood beside a river. The axe he was using fell into the river. He tried to go in the river, but he couldn't swim. He was very sad because without the axe he couldn't feed his family. He sat beside the river and cried. A strange old man came along and asked him what the problem was. The woodcutter explained what his problem was. The old man jumped in the river and brought out a gold axe. He asked the woodcutter if it was his. The woodcutter said 'no'. The old man jumped in again and brought out a silver axe. Again the honest woodcutter said it wasn't his. The third time the old man jumped in, he brought out the woodcutter's axe. The woodcutter was delighted, and thanked the old man. The old man told the woodcutter that because he was so honest and didn't take the gold or silver axes, and wanted only his own axe that he could have the others as a gift. The moral of the story is that honesty is always best.	Descriptor: research folk tale list the main events -Make CCQ questions Yes / No Total: 1 point
